PULTENEY HOTEL,
BATH.20th Sept 19

My dear Rosalie

Here I am, going through a cure which promises well. My M^r is not with me as she has to get the children off to school, but she is coming at the end of next week. My eldest boy is going, for the first time, to Winchester.

This place is not so deadly cold as most bathing places as there is a decent club and several old officers of my regiment frequent it. It is certainly a very pretty town.

We shall have to leave the Jantins of the rails round 1 o'clock from here I get back, but anyway I will do nothing till I have written to you 29th Oct.

Of course I may not go back anywhere near Arras which was within a 2 hours drive of Paris, where I was last.

I am anxious to see what you decide to do about Shorecliffe. I hope you will leave it but I can quite understand your feeling that nothing matters now that Laszlo is gone. I always used to think about the possibility of this being taken, & was always anxious on your account knowing how fearless Laszlo was. I believe de Lisle used to feel the same.

I quite hope that by the 16th Oct I shall be fit enough again to endure to the end. I do so want your presence that I shall see it out, to the right.

Yours always
T.D.O.S.
